

Waveland study panel blasts administration

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A local citizens' study panel says the city of Waveland is viewed as the "joke of Hancock County."

In a report issued Tuesday, the panel recommended raising city taxes and fees, annexing adjoining areas, and consolidating some services with other area governments.

The group also said the incumbent administration shouldn't lock-in existing staffing levels under a new Civil Service plan, and it should provide a one-year probationary period for employees in such a plan.

Overall, the committee said the city is poised on the brink of financial disaster, and may end up with the courts deciding Waveland's future.

Mike Durkovich, who chaired the committee, presented copies of the report during a routine city Board of Aldermen meeting, after Mayor Stella Frilot thanked the citizens for their long hours of research.

She said she and the aldermen would meet with the committee after the officials have had time to absorb the document. Although the report slams the city administration on a number of fronts, Frilot declined detailed comment Wednesday.

She said she hasn't had the opportunity to read the entire, lengthy document, but she took issue with a couple of its points.

Durkovich told the mayor and board he realized that some of the report won't "set well" with some officials, but he said "we tried to be honest and fair ... We do feel that this administration has done their business with good intent."

The report said the committee found "an administration that seems more bent on self-destruction than working together toward a brighter future."

The committee was appointed by the mayor and aldermen three months ago to study alternative sources of revenue for the financially-strapped Waveland. However, some appointees to the panel, including those of the mayor, dropped out during the study process, Durkovich said.

He added that the report isn't aimed only at the current administration: "The city of Waveland has sailed on, fat dumb and happy for years ... The citizens haven't really cared. But we're up damn near the 21st Century," Durkovich said, and the city "has to leap a century to get to the present."

DISMAL PICTURE

The report used financial data from city auditors showing a five-year pattern of increasing annual deficits. With some revenue sources declining, some city department expenses are escalating, the report said, leading to a perilous financial condition.

City workers who were asked to suggest ways to cut their own budgets didn't respond to the panel, the report said.

On the annexation issue, the report calls for adding commercial areas to the tax base along Highway 603 and Highway 90. It also called for annexing along Beach Boulevard to Bayou Caddy.

First, however, the committee said the city would greatly improve its chances of attracting anything by improving its financial status and the city's public image.

GRANT WRITER NEEDED

The panel applauded the efforts of Keith Mitchell, who wears the hats of building inspector, zoning official and community development director. But, they said, Mitchell is self-taught in the area of seeking grants. The city needs a professional grant writer and a city planner as well, the panel said.

The city hasn't taken advantage of federal and regional planning assistance which is available, the committee said.

One potential revenue-producer the committee recommended is a marina at Coleman Avenue's pier, capitalizing on the increasing

Proposed causeway would link Bayou Caddy, Point Clear

BY JANET MCQUEEN

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors viewed a sketch of a proposed four-lane causeway linking the Bayou Caddy community with Point Clear during a workshop meeting Thursday.

Malcolm Beckendorff and his brother, Milton, own 1,500 acres west of Bayou Caddy which is being eyed by a developer. The pair previously met with supervisors and gained approval for a 30-foot right-of-way through the rear portion of a county-owned shipyard.

In order for the project to fully develop, Malcolm Beckendorff said, more county land will be needed. Describing different scenarios, the Texas resident said a causeway with four 12-foot lanes and shoulders would need 96 feet.

Board attorney Gerald Gex interjected the only four-lane road in the county is the one Diamondhead built in that community, and he did not feel an agreement to commit that much county land was within reason.

With curb and gutter construction, Beckendorff said four lanes 12 feet wide with a 10-foot allowance for utilities would total 68 feet in width. The final scenario would be to cut down the size of the lanes to reduce the needed width to 64 feet.

Gex said he didn't know of a situation where the county or city had given more than 30 feet for a right-of-way.

"The area is a good area," said Beckendorff, "and we feel like we have something to offer."

Supervisor Robert Peterson expressed concern over the affect a bridge and causeway would have on the seafood business and shrimpers whose livelihood depends on use of the water.

Beckendorff assured the board the matter is being considered. The issue will be further discussed at the Monday morning meeting of the board.

BMR sets public hearing for Galaxy Casino Thurs.

The Bureau of Marine Resources will hear from opponents and proponents of the proposed Galaxy Casino at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Hancock County Community Center on Longfellow Road in Waveland.

The casino, which would be located just east of where Lakeshore Road meets Beach Boulevard near Clermont Harbor, has applied for wetland and dredging permits and for a variance to the coastal use plan.

Large bust nets cash for law enforcement

The largest drug bust in four years in Hancock County netted more than $16,000 for the Hancock County Narcotics Task Force, following a joint investigation by the Task Force, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, U.S. Customs and the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics. More than a kilo of cocaine, other items and cash was confiscated in the Diamondhead community in an ongoing investigation. Bay St. Louis and Waveland each received checks for $8,904.08, which will be used to purchase

Conflicts mar Waveland meeting

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Waveland city officials brought snickers from the audience Tuesday, during a regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen and mayor.

Tension among the officials was obvious throughout the relatively brief session, from the Pledge of Allegiance to adjournment one hour later.

At one point, Mayor Stella Frilot threatened to have Alderman Stan Weidman evicted from the session, after he accused of her lying concerning his position on recycling. A uniformed police officer stood in the area behind the alderman and mayor during the meeting.

Weidman has been at odds with the mayor and members of the board for months, on a variety of issues. Tuesday, he continued to provoke their anger, questioning details of a number of items on the agenda, and voting against most of matters that the board approved.

Weidman voted affirmative to his own appointment -- by Mayor Stella Frilot -- to a steering committee of the Bay-Waveland School Board.

Alderman Curtis Coleman, who sits next to Weidman, voted against the appointment. "Thank you Curtis," Weidman said to Colson after the vote.

Frilot said later she appointed Weidman to the committee in hopes of giving other area government officials the "benefit" of Weidman's services.

In other action, the board agreed to a $19,000 change order increasing the cost of the sewer force main project under construction from Waveland Avenue to the sewerage treatment plant.

Weidman questioned project engineer Duke Levy extensively on that matter, and contended the force main is "useless" as an avenue for residential connections.

Levy said the new facility is a transmission system upgrade, not a collection system addition. He said, however, future developments would benefit from the addition to the system.

The change order will extend the force main some 900 feet to a direct connection with the treatment plant.

Levy said he originally had estimated the entire project would cost some $120,000, and had tried to cut costs by connecting the force main to a gravity main near the plant. That's not the most efficient way of making the connection, Levy said.

BSL to vote on new sign ordinance, zoning plan

BY AMY PICKICH

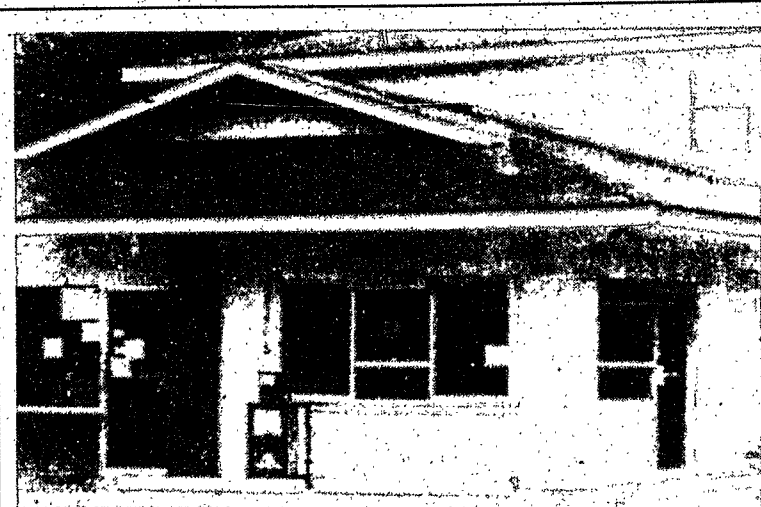

Bay St. Louis City Council members will continue to discuss a new sign ordinance and comprehensive zoning plan at a workshop set for 5:30 Monday at City Hall.

The matters will be considered for a vote at the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday. At a workshop this past Tuesday, council members discussed changes in the present ordinance with members of planning and zoning.

Some of the changes in the present sign ordinance include size and setback requirement of commercial and private signs, as well as the number of days temporary signs will be allowed to be displayed.

Planning and zoning director Les Fillingame said this new ordinance will basically increase the size of signs allowed on the high-

Second Street Post Office

The Downtown Bay St. Louis Post Office will remain open, after being closed Thursday, as post office officials seek a new contractor. The post office/gift shop has been run by Juanita Shubert since 1987, when the main office was moved to the current Highway 90 location. Her husband, Joseph Shubert ran the Stennis Space Center post office. Some merchants and residents who live near the Second Street post office and count on it to do business and check their mail were inconvenienced Thursday.

Grandpa

Grandpa was a man
 Who was pure of heart
 When he saw someone in need
 It tore his heart apart
 When I needed advice
 He was only a phone call away
 He taught me how to pray
 He was a very humble man
 And this I surely know
 He read his Bible every day
 Oh did he love Jesus so
 Pawpaw wasn't perfect
 But he did his best
 To have someone like him
 We were surely blessed
 He never hurt a single soul
 But blessed those who were in need

His heart was full of care and love
 Not full of hate and greed
 He was always full of happiness
 And always full of love
 Now he is rejoicing
 With the Father up above
 I send him all my love
 From my heart and soul
 But I know that he is happy
 Playing his guitar on the streets of gold.

Grandpa I miss and love you
 But this where you belong
 You used to call it heaven
 But now you call it home.

Study

demand generated by area casino development.

The committee also urged that the city cash in on casino development by negotiating revenue-sharing agreements with Jubilee Casino, the proposed Galaxy Casino, and the county.

While the county stands to receive hefty payments from Jubilee and any other casino in the unincorporated area, it's not likely it will pass on some of that directly to the city of Waveland, the panel said.

SUPERVISORS CRITICIZED

They criticized Supervisor Robert Peterson as non-responsive to their requests to meet with the committee. "This appears to be an obvious reflection of the county Board of Supervisors attitude toward the city of Waveland," the committee said.

Still, the committee said, the city is forced to provide services "to protect its citizens and the transient casino patrons without just compensation or benefit to the city."

Casino employees and customers have increased traffic on Waveland thoroughfares, they said, but the city isn't getting any revenue to help pay for additional city services. "The city residents should not be paying a price when there is virtually no benefit being gained."

"Yet, despite these additional burdens, the city appears to have allowed the county and the casinos to use city services at little or no cost."

POLICE DEPARTMENT

Expenses for operating the police department have increased by over 25 percent in the last six years, the panel said, which isn't necessarily excessive.

But "we do find it startling that the revenue generated from fines and court fees has declined by better than 30 percent, even though the city has experienced a significant growth in traffic patterns over the past years."

The panel said while Bay St. Louis has recently increased security in residential areas, "Waveland's force seems to have become less noticeable on the streets of our city. Perhaps this is due to a perceived laissez faire attitude of the city in prosecuting violators."

The panel called for improved enforcement and prosecution of moving and non-moving violations, and said the department should improve utilization of its existing forces.

Frilot said Wednesday that hiking court fees and having police issue more tickets are directly contrary to what the public wants.

"The citizens of Waveland ... want a police force patrolling the residential areas and not one that sits on the highway writing tickets."

She also reacted to the recommendation for raising property taxes: "If the board (of aldermen) wants to go up on property taxes, let them. I'm not a legislator, I'm a manager."

The panel said based on the present city financial condition, "a serious look at an across the board tax increase must be viewed as a virtual necessity just to maintain the status quo."

One additional source of revenue may be hiking what the city charges the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District to lease the $1.4 million sewerage treatment plant that the city owns. The panel said the city leases the facility to the district for only $1,206 monthly.

LOW COST IDEAS

One section of the report dealt with low-cost ideas for rapidly improving Waveland. It called for a public-private effort by a group of business leaders, residents and city officials.

Examples of that group's approach included increased involvement with local agencies such as the Hancock Chamber of Commerce and Historical Society, and boosting community involvement with beautification efforts.

The group could research grants, and join with other cities in staging festivals and fund-raisers, the report said.

Other ideas included creating a Film and Television Production Commission to help market the Gulf Coast area, and investigating the possibility of extending the University of Southern Mississippi's educational programs in the Waveland area.

The panel also suggested increasing fees at the fishing pier and at the animal control center. And, the panel said, "No matter the cost to initiate, recycling should not be overlooked."

The report lists several members of the committee -- there have been others appointed to the panel who either didn't attend any meetings or who dropped out before the work was finished, Durkovich said.

Those on the final report include Albert Sjoström, Marie Mitchell, Joe Albe, Armond Jonte, Derek Breerwood and Lionel Bourgeois.

Jonte had dissenting views on some points in the report.

way and eliminate many of the small signs that clutter the highway and other areas.

The height allowed for signs on the highway, in C-3, will be increased from 16- to 32-sq.-ft. The minimum number of interchangeable panels in signs was also doubled in some areas.

Fillingame said the biggest change will be that the portable read-a-boards will be outlawed.

Casino signs will be subject to the sign ordinance.

Proposals for a comprehensive zoning plan were submitted by Gulf Regional Planning and Continental Consultants and will be discussed further at the next workshop.

Fillingame said there are pros and cons to both plans. He said whichever one the council approves, the main thing it will do is "give the city a plan to live by for the next 20 years or so."

Conflicts

And, he added, since the bids for the project came in at $88,000, the city would be wise to upgrade the project by running the force main directly to the plant.

Later in the meeting, the board approved costs of several emergency repairs to the sewer system, including $6,371 to replace a broken sewer line on Beach Boulevard.

Other repairs included replacing two sewer pumps at Dane and Beach Boulevard, for a total of $2,083, and upgrading the Nicholson Avenue-Beach Boulevard lift station by adding two pumps, for a total of $2,083.

In addition, the board agreed to pay for replacing two 20-year-pumps at Highway 90 and Old Spanish Trail, for a total cost of $4,370.

Weidman voted against the allocations, saying the city is spending too much money on "emergency" repairs and too little on maintenance of facilities.

In other matters, Frilot said the city will work with area citizens who want to beautify the Highway 90 median strip in the city limits. But, she cautioned, past attempts by the city to do the same thing have been vetoed by the Highway Department.

Frilot said the Highway Department doesn't want the liability of having private citizens working in the median, and they contend they can't mow around decorative plantings.

"They don't mow anyway. We're the ones who mow," Frilot said of city workers. "That's what the joke is."

QUOTABLE QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Don't forget that the Krewe of Nereids is scheduled to roll at 1 p.m. this afternoon.

I would advise you getting to the parade route early. Parade goers start lining up vehicles early in the morning on the day of the annual parade.

The parade route for Nereids is from Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center down Highway 90 east to Bouslog, turn down Highway 90 west to Waveland Avenue and disband.

Coming parades include the Krewe of Diamondhead Land parade set for Saturday, Feb. 12; St. Paul's Pass Christian parade set for Sunday, Feb. 13; and on Mardi Gras Day, the Krewe of Real People, Tuesday, Feb. 15.

I am hoping we will have a bright, sunny, warm day for all this year's parades.

One thing I would like to ask those attending the parades to do if anyway possible. That is, please try and not leave so much litter behind.

I realize the city crews get busy cleaning up after the parades, but the amount of litter could be dramatically reduced with the help of those attending areas parades.

Last year I did observe some folks using several barrels placed by Bay St. Louis for Nereids parade near a reviewing stand and this really helped reduce the amount of litter needed to be collected in that area.

I also saw several families and groups who took along garbage and even grocery bags. After the parade they took their litter home with them to dispose of properly.

If everyone did a little bit, there would not be that much left for the city crews to pick up.

Remember, we as taxpayers end up footing the cost for the cleanup of litter.

No litter

The City of Bay St. Louis promotes the area and at the same time urges visitors not to litter. The sign above is located by the Bay St. Louis bridge, and another is on Highway 90 by the U.S. Post Office. Bay St. Louis places a lot of emphasis on the elimination of litter on medians and service roads of Highway 90, also city streets. In addition, visitors are told that the city is a A Place Apart, and also shows a great concern for our environment. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tourist grateful for kindnesses shown

Dear Editor,

When on the way to the casinos on Jan. 5, my husband, Wm. G. "Bill" Evans, suffered a fatal heart attack at your welcome station.

This was a very traumatic thing for me and my daughter to experience.

I wish to commend the kind and courteous actions of the workers at the welcome station, the paramedics and ambulance crew, your wonderful law enforcement officers, who escorted us to the hospital, and the medical personnel. All did a great job and have our everlasting gratitude.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Wm. G. Evans

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Hard to comprehend another trial for Byron De La Beckwith

Once again this week Mississippi is being revisited by its past that never seems to die; the retrial, 30 years later, of Byron De La Beckwith, the onetime Greenwood fertilizer salesman, for the assassination of civil rights pioneer Medgar Evers.

It is difficult for me, as a reporter who covered both of Beckwith's previous trials, which ended in deadlocked juries back in 1964, to fully comprehend that it is happening once again, and in the same courtroom.

This time there are notable differences, however. To begin with, the jury will not come from Hinds County where the murder took place. It will be made up of Panola Countians, who live more than 150 miles away, and who will be brought by bus down to Jackson to hear the evidence.

And, far different from the previous two trials, the jury will not be all white, nor will it be all male. In that regard, history has rendered a monumental change.

The evidence — despite the rather ambitious claims of a young assistant Hinds County district attorney who pushed for reopening the case that there is some "new" evidence — will essentially be circumstantial as it was back in 1964, built chiefly around a 30.06 Eddystone rifle which bore Beckwith's finger print.

The rifle with an affixed scope had been found in a clump of honeysuckle vines in a vacant lot about 250 feet from the driveway of Evers' home in Northwest Jackson where he was slain in ambush around 12:30 a.m. on June 12, 1963.

Once, in late November, 1963 while Beckwith was awaiting his first trial, I had a rare chance to talk for a short time with him one-on-one when he was brought into the Hinds County jail from nearby Rankin County. This was only a week or so after the assassination of President Kennedy.

After talking with him a few moments, I was struck with the feeling that a mentality kinship, a loner who wanted to be noticed by the world, existed between Beckwith and Lee Harvey Oswald. In both cases, the murder weapon was found abandoned at the lair of the assassin.

Although the jury did not convict (the first jury was split 8 to 4 for conviction), there was never any doubt in my mind that the FBI and the Jackson and Hinds County authorities had put the right man on trial.

It always bothered me that three weeks before the first trial I was tipped to expect a couple of local Greenwood cops dug up by Beckwith advocates to say they saw Beckwith that night in Greenwood. They did.

Several times during the political campaign of 1967, when Beckwith ran for lieutenant-governor, reports came back to me from around the state that he had bragged to some who gathered around him, "Sure, I killed that nigger." Evidently one ex-Klansman, Delmar Dennis, (now living near Pigeon Forge, Tenn.) who had heard Beckwith say that in 1967 is to be a prosecution witness in the retrial.

I've been sent a new book to be released Feb. 2 — "Portrait of a Racist" with the subtitle, "The Man Who Killed Medgar Evers" by Reed Massengill, a nephew of Beckwith's first wife.

Young Mr. Massengill, a journalism graduate of University of Tennessee, Knoxville, who apparently was given access, albeit strained, to Beckwith as "family" in the process of writing the book, paints a rather convincing case of why Beckwith may have been the killer.

In the book, he reveals some intimate family details (among them, Beckwith's problem with impotency during his turbulent marriage to Mary Louise Williams, Massengill's aunt) and the brooding racial hatred which consumed his uncle.

Three other books about the reprise of the Medgar Evers assassination case after three decades are also in the making, or are just awaiting the completion of the trial. One is by Jerry Mitchell, the Jackson Clarion Ledger reporter whose revelations from the sealed files of the old State Sovereignty Commission's of the commission's interference in Beckwith's second trial, largely spurred the Hinds County DA to reopen the case.

Another is by Adam Nossiter, now of New Orleans, formerly a reporter for the Atlanta Constitution, and a third by Maryanne Vollers, a free-lance writer who formerly worked for Time Magazine. Then there are at least a couple of made-for-TV movies in the works, plus several heavy duty television specials upcoming.

Certainly Mississippi is going to have the national spotlight focused on it for the next month or so, but this is not the kind of publicity the state Department of Economic Development is looking for.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

Legislators raise their salaries, health insurance for school employees

The House of Representatives approved several bills last week, including proposals to provide full funding of health insurance for school personnel, establish an alcohol boating safety act, strengthen enforcement of Mississippi's motor vehicle financial responsibility law, and authorize construction of a new state prison in DeSoto County.

One bill will provide full funding of health insurance premiums for employees at public schools, community colleges and public libraries.

The state already is due to pick up 100 percent of the cost of health insurance this year for certificated teachers under legislation passed in 1993. The latest measure would expand the funding to include all school district employees who work at least 20 hours week, along with personnel at the community colleges and public libraries over the state.

EDUCATION

A number of education bills were approved, including proposals to require home economics programs in community colleges and public schools, grades 7-12, with strong emphasis on course work in responsible parenting and family living skills; establish a teacher center in the Department of Education to act primarily as a teacher placement and recruiting unit; and authorize a new program to bring more equity in vocational education for "special populations" such as displaced homemakers, single pregnant women, single parents and teen-age parents.

BUI

It would be unlawful to operate a motor boat on public waters in the state while under the influence of intoxicating liquor under another major bill passed by the House. Patterned after state DUI laws, the "BUI" proposal would give conservation officers the authority to administer breath tests to determine the alcoholic content of a suspected offender's blood.

A first-time conviction could result in fines of between $250 to $1,000 and 24 hours in jail, with stiffer penalties for subsequent violations. Similar bills have been passed by the House in previous sessions but never won final legislative approval.

The House voted to authorize construction of a 1,000 medium security prison to be located in DeSoto County, with voters in the county having an opportunity to petition for an election on the facility. Other pending legislation would authorize new prison facilities in Lauderdale, Rankin and Greene counties.

A proposed constitutional amendment was adopted to include drug felonies on the list of crimes for which a person, upon conviction, loses the right to vote. House members voted to reinstate a law originally passed in 1991 to set guidelines and procedures for workplace drug and alcohol testing of employees.

A measure was passed to strengthen laws involving sexual exploitation of children, including a new provision making it unlawful to possess any drawing, photograph, film or video tape that shows a child engaging in sexually explicit conduct.

Legislative salaries would be raised from $10,000 to $12,000 a year under another House-passed bill. The bill also would increase salaries for justice court judges; provide pay raises for the state's Attorney General, Adjutant General, and director of the Veterans Affairs Board; and provide a $700 a month increase in monthly expense allowance for legislators while not in session.

A proposal to tighten the state's Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility law and hopefully reduce the number of uninsured motorists on Mississippi highways won approval. Other highlights included passage of a bill to require child restraint devices in motor vehicles for children up to 4 years old, boosting the age from 2 to 4 years.

Please feel free to write to us at the House of Representatives, P. O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215-1018, or call us at 359-3770 in Jackson.

FROM THE STATE AUDITOR

COUNTIES

Q Does a justice court clerk charge a fee for levy of execution, attachment or garnishment?

A No. These services are included in the $15 uniform fee $25-7-25(a)

Q If the board of supervisors employs the chancery clerk to process homestead exemption applications, should compensation be based upon the number of new applications actually filed during a year or upon total homestead applications involved, when the board exercises its option to not require annual reapplications?

A The compensation should be based upon the number of new applications filed during a year, not upon all applications involved. (Attorney General's opinion to O'Neal dated October 14, 1993)

Q Are constables now required to receive training for a period of two weeks within the first 24 months in office?

A Yes, and constables elected at the November 1991 General Elections must complete the required training before Jan. 1, 1994, or lose fees and costs, the right to carry a firearm and the right to exercise law enforcement functions. ($19-19-5)

Q May a board of supervisors pay for constable training under Section 19-19-5 as amended, when the constable involved was unable to complete the more stringent, previously required course for which the county paid?

A Yes. (Attorney General's opinion to Welch dated Oct. 21, 1993)

Q Are justice court clerks required to report delinquent justice court fines and penalties to the clerk of the board of supervisors on a monthly basis?

A No. Section 9-11-19 requires this report at least semiannually. More frequent reports could be made if desired by the board of supervisors.

Q Must the tax collector begin to accept payment of ad valorem taxes not later than Dec. 26, 1993, for taxes required to be paid by Feb. 1, 1994?

A Yes. ($27-41-1)

Q Are counties required to close the courthouse to observe state holidays?

A In general, the courthouse shall be closed on all official state holidays. If the holiday falls on Saturday, it may be closed on the preceding Friday. If the holiday falls on a Sunday, it may be closed on the following Monday. The Board of Supervisors, in its discretion, may close the county offices on additional holidays created by executive order of the Governor. ($25-1-99)

Two BHS players sign with Miss. schools

BY AMY PICKICH

Two Bay High School football players will keep their talents in state, as both signed with Mississippi colleges Wednesday, national signing day for high school athletes.

Jeff Hopgood, the 17-year-old defensive lineman from Bay St. Louis will head to Hattiesburg, where he will play for the University of Southern Mississippi under a four-year scholarship.

Tiger-head football coach Rocky Gaudin said Bay High made history when Hopgood signed with the Eagles. He said Hopgood is the first Bay High player in some 17 years to sign directly out of high school with a Division I-A school.

"He may be the first," Gaudin said. He said he is sure no one has since 1978.

Hopgood, whose prospects included Ole Miss, Miss. State, La. Tech, USL, and Auburn, said he thought USM was a "great place."

"I felt like I fit in well with the players and coaches," Hopgood said.

Hopgood is the son of Candace Hopgood of Bay St. Louis and George A. Hopgood of Florida.

Jeff is not the first in his family to play college ball, as his father played for the Miami Hurricanes 1965-69.

Bay High linebacker and running back Dewayne Antoine will take his talent to Pearl River Community College.

Pearl River assistant coach Michael Humphreys signed the 18-year-old senior from Waveland for a 2-year stint with the Wildcats.

Antoine is the son of Mary Antoine of Pass Christian and James Antoine of Waveland.

Dewayne is also part of a football family as his brother, Thomas Antoine, who played ball at Bay High and Pearl River, was present at the signing.

Thomas Antoine, a 1984 Bay High graduate, played football at Pearl River from 1984-1986.

Gaudin said both players were four-year starters with Bay High. The Tigers ended their season 6-4.

Rocks shun Blue Devils

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws dismantled the Pearl River Central Blue Devils 73-58 in Carriere on Tuesday.

The Rocks held a commanding lead at the intermission 42-22.

SSC kept their offensive prowess going in the third period and subbed players in and out in the final stanza.

Brandon Benoit scored 18 points and dished out 4 assists to lead the Rocks. He was followed by Terry Lawyer who chipped in 14 points and grabbed 7 boards. Hector Hernandez added 13 points and pulled down 9 boards.

The win improves the Rocks record to 15-9 and 7-5.

Mississippi College signs Wedgeworth

BY AMY PICKICH

Hancock High safety and halfback Lance Wedgeworth will travel to Clinton.

The 18-year-old Hancock County resident received a four-year scholarship to the Division II school when he signed with them Wednesday.

Wedgeworth, who has played football all of the six years he has attended HHS, said he chose Mississippi College because of the "good program" there.

The fact that he has relatives living in the Jackson area and that some of his relatives attended and played ball there also appealed to Lance.

"I guess you can call it a family tradition," Wedgeworth said.

He was also recruited by Delta State and Pearl River Community College.

Lance is the son of Clay and Linda Wedgeworth of Hancock County.

Creative Jewelry... the name says it all

Barbara Kerner opened Creative Jewelry in Waveland in October 1993, but she is not new to the business.

Kerner, an experienced jeweler, worked for three years as a wholesale manufacturer with a jeweler in Metairie, La. After moving to the Coast a year ago, she decided to open her own jewelry manufacturing, sales and repair shop in the city she now calls home, Waveland.

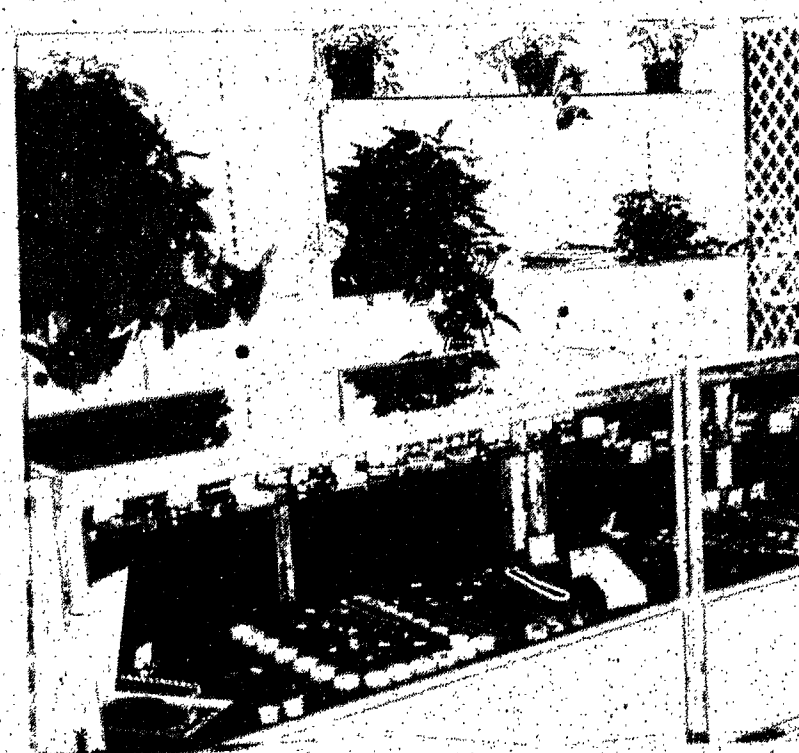

At Creative Jewelry, the name says it all. Creative and unique styles, as well as traditional jewelry, is available. They have a large selection to choose from for every occasion.

Rings, earrings, necklaces, bracelets, pendants, you name it—in just about any style you can imagine. And if you don't find exactly what you want, have a personal gift custom made.

Customs made jewelry and designs, including sweetheart designs, are available for the perfect Valentine or wedding gift. Add a personal touch to that special gift and have it monogrammed. Gifts and jewelry items for baby's are available as well.

Jewelry repair is done on the premises. Bring in other items for monogramming also. Layaway is available.

Creative Jewelry is located at 2054 Waveland Ave in 'Our Shopping Center'. Call 467-7020 for more information.
